

Bath rugs are ruining my marriage. Can you help?

Contributed by Jay
Monday, 18 June 2007

"Ray and Jay, I have a problem. I'm doing a master bath remodel that has taken so many twists and turns, my wife is fed up. She bought a bunch of decorator type things that no longer match so she put me in charge because she's tired of taking things back. I think I've mostly got a handle on it, except she refuses to let me carpet the floor. I got some cheap red rugs that I thought would coordinate with the trim, but since I showed them to her she won't talk to me anymore. I don't know the first thing about bath rugs but want to make her happy, but since she won't talk I'm at a loss. If I don't get some help figuring this out, I think I'm going to die from neglect."

When designing or remodeling a bathroom, there are many things to consider. What kind of toilet should I install? Do I want a bathtub or a shower? However, few things are more important than choosing the right bath rugs for your bathroom. Choose the wrong bath rug, and you will have thrown off the balance of your entire home.

All right, maybe choosing an accent bath rug for your new bathroom isn't a life or death situation. However, it does take a little more thought than simply going to the store and buying the first cheap bright red bath rugs you find. With a little thought, you can pamper yourself, and show off a bit of your personality, with your bath rugs.

The first thing to consider is to decide how much you want to spend on your bath rugs. Are you the type that wants to show the world your affinity for the finer things in life? Then you're going to want to purchase designer bath rugs. Many designers have home collections these days, so it should be easy to find a bath rug that fits your style and huge budget. Or, are you the type who doesn't want to spend your whole paycheck on something you will only use once a day? If so, you should buy discount bath rugs at a mass retailer.

Next, think about your style when it comes to using bath rugs. If you will only use your bath rug to stand on when drying off after a bath, then you should look in to purchasing a couple of accent bath rugs. They won't take up a lot of room so you can admire the beautiful tile you installed. Large bath rugs, or even round bath rugs, are idea for people who like to move around in the bathroom without touching their bare feet to the cold tile and getting the floor wet.

Speaking of wet floors, if you are worried about getting water on the floor, buy bath rug runners and you won't have to worry any longer. Bath rug runners are usually the entire length of a normal sized bathtub and can soak up water and decrease the chances of falls in the bathroom.

Finally, how cushioned do you want your feet to be while standing on a bath rug? If you're like most people, you want to be comfortable in every room of your home, bathroom included. The best bath rugs to purchase for that purpose are Habidecor bath rugs. Habidecor bath rugs are luxurious examples of European style with a plush feel and designs to fit any bathroom décor. Your feet with thank you!

Finding a good bath rug for your new bathroom can be difficult. But, if you follow the steps outlined here, you won't have to worry about buying the wrong kind of bath rug. Instead, you can worry about what kind of towels to buy for your bathroom. And that's a whole other issue on its own.